Safety Engineering

Any savvy business owner knows that having the best equipment, quality customers and top-notch employees are the keys to success. But all of it means little if hazardous work conditions and the number of injured employees are higher than the bottom line.

Advantage WorkComp Services has the answers. Our programs are designed to help your clients recognize and solve any workplace safety issue.

Getting started is the hard part. That's why our Loss Prevention Specialists are available to move your client in the right direction from the beginning. With years of experience and diverse backgrounds, our Loss Prevention Specialists can help them achieve their workplace safety goals efficiently and effectively.

A specialist will survey their company for potential safety hazards and then train supervisors and employees to recognize and eliminate them. Several different services are available, including industrial hygiene, ergonomic analysis, fleet safety and general hazard surveys.

One of the best ways to enhance safety in a workplace is to have supervisors and employees attend safety seminars. Advantage can offer on-site seminars to address many safety topics from workers' compensation fundamentals to defensive driving to OSHA-required programs.

Once an evaluation is done and supervisors/employees have received training, it's time to execute effective safety programs. To help accomplish these, Advantage has a variety of written safety programs which can be modified to fit a client's specific needs.

Advantage has the experts, programs and materials to tailor safety programs to specific workplace needs. We have your clients' safety in mind.
